PARADIGMS OF THE IRREGULAR VERBS.

GENERAL REMARKS.

1. Do regularly precedes the Imperfect, Preterite, Conditional and verbal noun and also forms part of certain irregular verbs but is often omitted; it is sometimes used in the present as a simple relative often replaced by a.

2. A special relative form in -r is often used in Connaught and sometimes in the other provinces in the 3 s. of the present (- air, -ear) and future (-far, -fear). In the present r is often added to the ordinary 3 s., e.g. bíonnr; verbs in the simple relative are regularly aspirated.

3. The Passive or Autonomous regularly escapes aspiration in the relative and after má and ní but often aspiration is used.

4. The verb ir has no synthetic forms; all other verbs have both synthetic and analytic forms; the former are usual except in the 3 s. and 2 pl., but the latter are common in the dependent (i.e. with ní, an, go; má takes the absolute form of the verb).

5 (a). The termination -e, -a, as alternative to -ir, -air (2 s.) is sometimes met with; and -tí, -caí, or -tí, -caí are alternative to the analytic form with rib. Examples noted are:—An gcluine rúd! do you hear that! an gcloitcí! really! (do ye hear!); cad deire? what do you say? an mar sin atáthaí (-aoi)? is that the way ye are?

(b). The old 3 s. termination -aid, -id is found in late texts and in U. where -ann, -eann is treated as Habitual Present; al. in 3 s. pret.

(c). Early -am, -eam, still occasionally replaces 1*st pl.* -aimid esp. in poetry and in the imperative, e.g., déanfam, we will do; bíom, let us be; -aimid also sometimes replaces -aimír in the imperative.

(d). Future Passive or Autonomous, -far, -fear is often replaced by -faidear, -fidear, esp. in Connaught; oft. -tar (-tear) for -dar (-dear) in pres.

6. The past participle, participle of necessity, and participial adjective end in -da (-de), -ta (-te) and are sometimes distinguished, e.g., p. a. cuirtha, fágtha; p. nec. cuirthe, fágthe.

7. Adjectives in -ach (sometimes -arach) derived from p. a. of verbs have the force of verbal adjectives of which réamhtach (See Dictionary) is an example.

8. A decided tendency towards regularisation exists in regard to the irregular verbs.

THE IRISH TEXTS SOCIETY was established in 1898 for the purpose of publishing texts in the Irish language, accompanied by such introductions, English translations, glossaries and notes as may be deemed desirable.

The Annual Subscription is 15/- payable on 1st January. This entitles members to receive, post free, the current volume. There is no entrance fee.

Members whose subscriptions are not in arrear may, where necessary, complete their sets by obtaining back volumes up to Volume XXIII inclusive at 10/6 each, except Volume VII, Duanaire Finn, Part I, which has been reprinted and may be obtained for 15/-. All other volumes are 15/- each.

The payment of a single sum of £10 10s. 0d. entitles to life membership. Life members will receive one copy of each volume issued subsequently to the receipt of this sum by the Society. All remittances should be made payable to the Society, not to individual Officers.

Vols. I, II, III, IIIa, IV, VIII, IX, XIV and XV are now out of print and others are rapidly becoming scarce. Non-members can obtain the Society's volumes from The Educational Company of Ireland, Limited, 89 Talbot Street, Dublin.

The Council makes a strong appeal to all interested in the preservation and publication of Irish Manuscripts to join the Society and to contribute to its funds.
